Binding death benefit nomination

Choose who gets your super when you die

Want greater certainty over who your benefits will go to?

Most people think their super automatically becomes part of their estate when they die. But it doesn't – super funds have to follow super laws and the rules in their Trust Deed to decide who will receive your death benefit payment (made up of your super or income stream and any insurance you might have).

If you make a valid binding death benefit nomination, it makes things simple: we must pay your death benefit to the people you nominate, in the percentages you choose.

Your binding death benefit nomination won't lapse or expire

A valid binding nomination won't expire, but you can cancel it or make a new nomination at any time, and it won't cost you anything.

Already nominated a reversionary beneficiary?

If you've already made a reversionary beneficiary nomination for your CBUS super income stream, you should NOT complete this binding death benefit nomination. Your reversionary nomination will ensure an income stream will be paid to your eligible spouse when you die.

Who you can nominate as a beneficiary

Not everyone can be nominated as a beneficiary, so it's important to know who is eligible to receive your death benefit payment. You can nominate:

A dependant, who must be:

- Your spouse (including de facto spouse or same-sex partner)
- Your child/children of any age (including adopted, outside of marriage and step[1])
- Someone you're in an interdependency relationship with[2], or
- Someone who is financially dependent on you.

Any person you nominate must still be a dependant when you die to ensure we must follow your nomination.

Your legal personal representative (LPR)

- This is the executor of your will, or the person appointed by the Court to administer your estate if you don't have a will
- This option may suit you if you want your death benefit to go to someone who doesn't fit within the definition of a dependant, such as a parent, sibling or close friend. You can include them in your will and nominate your LPR as your beneficiary in your account.

For more information about binding death benefit nominations, including what will happen if you don't have one, head to cbussuper.com.au/beneficiaries or mediasuper.com.au/beneficiaries.

[1] A person is no longer your stepchild if their natural parent dies before you, if you're in a de facto relationship with their natural parent and you separate, or if you're married to their natural parent and you divorce.

[2] An interdependency relationship exists when two people (even if they are not related):

- have a close personal relationship, and
- live together, and
- one or both of them provides the other with financial support, and
- one or both of them provides the other with domestic support and personal care.

If two people, related or not, have a close personal relationship but don't meet the other requirements, they may still be considered as 'interdependent' if the reason that they don't meet the other requirements is because of the physical, intellectual or psychiatric disability of one of the people.

People who share accommodation, such as housemates, and people who provide domestic care under a contract for service are not considered interdependent.

Five essentials for a valid binding nomination

CBUS | media super	You're a member of CBUS or Media Super when you die.
	The person nominated is your dependant on the date of your death or a legal personal representative.
	Your nomination is received by us and has been correctly and fully completed (including percentages adding to 100%).
18+	The witnesses are 18 years of age or more, and not nominated on the form as a beneficiary.
	You've kept your nomination up to date if your life circumstances have changed (e.g. you marry or divorce, you enter or end a de facto relationship, you welcome a new child, or a nominated beneficiary dies).

Important

1. Consider seeking legal advice before making your nomination.

2. Your beneficiaries may also need financial advice about the tax consequences of receiving your death benefit.

Step 2: Nominate your beneficiaries

To make a new non-lapsing binding death benefit nomination, or change your nomination, complete this step in full.

Please nominate who you want to receive your super and any insurance payments (if applicable) at the time of your death. The minimum you can allocate to a single beneficiary is 1% and your total across all beneficiaries must add up to 100%.

You can nominate your dependants or your legal personal representative, or a combination of both. Complete the relevant sections below.

Your dependants

First name and initial/s of middle name/s (e.g. Sam R)	Family name	Relationship to you: Spouse	Child	Financial dependant	Interdependant	Percentage
						. %

You can nominate more beneficiaries by providing their details on a separate piece of paper and attaching it to this form. Remember to make sure it is signed, dated and witnessed in the same manner as this form.

Step 3: Cancel your current nomination

☐ Please cancel my existing binding (lapsing or non-lapsing) death benefit nomination.

Make sure you complete steps 4 and 5 before returning this form to us.

Step 4: Member declaration

I understand and accept that:

- if I've completed step 3 of this form, I've directed CBUS Super / Media Super to cancel all my existing (lapsing or non-lapsing) binding death benefit nominations
- if I've completed step 2 of this form, my nomination is a direction to the Trustee of CBUS Super / Media Super to distribute my death benefit to those I have nominated, and in the proportions I have nominated
- the beneficiaries I have nominated must be my spouse, child, financial dependant, interderpendant, or legal personal representative at the time of my death for my nomination to be valid
- I understand that if I divorce from my married spouse or separate from my de facto spouse, or have a child after making this nomination, it will be invalid
- the nomination I've made will not lapse or expire
- I may cancel or make a new non-lapsing death benefit nomination at any time
- if my nomination is determined to be invalid, then my death benefit will be distributed in accordance with the CBUS Super / Media Super Trust Deed, which is available at cbussuper.com.au/trust-deed / mediasuper.com.au/trust-deed
- this nomination or cancellation applies to the account I've provided in step 1
- I have read the Binding Death Nomination page at cbussuper.com.au/beneficiaries or mediasuper.com.au/beneficiaries that sets out the terms on which this nomination is made, and I understand that these are consistent with the CBUS Super / Media Super Trust Deed
- my beneficiaries and I will be bound by the provision of the CBUS Super / Media Super Trust Deed.

This declaration must be signed by you in the presence of a staff member.
